

1. Chelsom Duomo

British lighting designer and manufacturer Chelsom is placing the spotlight on Duomo, one of the hero ranges from its latest collection, Edition 28. Designed with hospitality interiors in mind, the range includes both wall and table lamps, each of which feature a stylish metal dome nestled on a faux alabaster inner dome. The table lamps, with their tapered columns, emit warm, ambient light whilst also spilling downlight onto the surface below. The wall light meanwhile diffuses a halo effect onto the wall, ideal for use in corridors and public spaces. Duomo fixtures are available in Golden Bronze or Black Bronze, and are made using steel and acrylic.

3. Fritz Hansen Clam

Fritz Hansen recently expanded its Clam range, presenting a new table and floor lamp featuring the emblematic brushed brass and opal glass. "A natural extension of the Clam collection, the new designs bring more lighting options to living spaces by seamlessly connecting a room across multiple zones," explains Creative Design Director Marie-Louise Høstbo. Designers Isabel Ahm and Signe Lund add: "We worked simultaneously with the silhouettes of all the lamps in the collection to create consistency and a kinship between designs. We looked to the contours, proportions and details to ensure that the lamps deliver soft, ambient light."

4. Original BTC Crosby

British lighting manufacturer Original BTC has introduced Crosby, a new table light design. Each piece is made up of two cylindrical shapes: a sleek, mouth-blown glass base and a natural linen shade. The smooth anthracite glass creates a compelling contrast against the tactile fabric shade, while considered brass details further complement the design. Within the glass, a sand-cast and sandblasted brass stem extends from a gentle dome to the light socket, and a ball joint in satin brass allows users to effortlessly tilt the shade for optimal illumination. The glass has also been ground down at its base to create a neat opening for a grey braided cotton cable.
