Decorex

International 2015

The luxury interiors show is back; with a theme of the future of luxury it is set to be a stunning event.

At Syon Park, London, this year's Decorex promises to bring together an assortment of luxury interiors. Running from the 20th to the 23rd of September 2015 it is the first showcase to open the 2015 London Design Festival. This year 400 exhibitors, from established names through to emerging talent, will be launching new collections alongside a host of interactive features exploring the show theme; the future of luxury.

New for 2015 Decorex added a Patrons Panel, utilising the show theme, each of the members will be working with Decorex to explore this in a variety of ways.

Acting as ambassadors for the show are Libby Sellers, gallerist and design historian and former senior curator of the Design Museum London; Architect and Designer, Nigel Coates, board member of Trustees of The Architecture Foundation and Associate Director for INSIDE festival; Celebrated Interior Designer, Guy Goodfellow; renowned for his elegant and grand interior projects; Dame of luxury, Lucia van der Post, writer, journalist and Associate Editor of the Financial Times How To Spend It magazine.

In the seminar theatre, Libby will be chairing an insightful panel discussion based around the show theme, the future of luxury. Guy will be presenting a talk about his recent project work at the infamous country house Garsington Manor.

Nigel Coates comments on being a patron "Having watched and worked with Decorex over the past few years, I'm convinced it is the must see show for anyone involved in interiors at the top end. Encyclopedic in its quality and scope, the show is a unique resource. That's why everyone goes. This year I've been asked to be a patron of the show and no doubt will enjoy fulfilling my role."

Guy Goodfellow comments on being a patron: "Having attended Decorex for a number of years, I was delighted to be one of its Patrons for this year's show. Each year, I come away from Decorex with a wealth of inspiration - not surprising given the array of design companies launching new collections under one roof. It has become a show of international standing and a vital date in the diary."

The show covers a range of luxury interiors from furniture to surfaces and of course lighting. Focusing on the more decorative of the lighting market there are some special pieces to behold at this year's show. One of which, launching exclusively, is the Aureole, a striking new table lamp from Tigermoth Lighting. This table lamp features two solid discs held with an elegant metal frame. It is available in two colourways and the patinated Bronze lamp frame holds two hand-worked solid brass discs, with the hand-gilded gold lamp holding two hand-thrown raki-fired ceramic discs. Tigermoth's entire collection is now available converted to IP44 standards. This means that designers considering any light in the collection can now specify that light for use in areas of bathrooms where IP44 is a requirement.

Another product to watch out for is the chandelier by Kaia. It is made from three circular bands of warm light that join together to form a perfect sphere. It has three perpendicular bands made of solid brass and embedded with LED's fused together with brushed brass rings set at each of the six intersections.

Sign up to visit the show at www.decorex.com. A trade ticket costs £15 in advance or £25 on the day.

Decorex also hosts an extensive seminar programme with a range of speakers from all walks of interior design. Highlights include, renowned interior designer, Tim Gosling chairs one of Tuesday's panel discussions on creating international luxury. Designer, Noé Duchaufour will host a talk on luxury within the French design industry on Monday.

On Monday the 21st Andrew Orange, Lighting Designer and Consultant at Orange Lighting will host An LED Survivors Guide - an essential ingredient to your lighting tool kit. It is true that the world of LED lighting is accelerating fast and it is difficult to keep up in this ever changing technological age! Here is your chance to equip yourself with some essential tips on lighting in the LED era. Andrew Orange will review the changes, fittings, fixtures and the impact of new technology on today's lighting schemes. Topics include: Where to illuminate? What light for which job? What colour of light do we use? Where do we position the lighting source? How do we select the correct type of source? How do we control the source?
