ARMOURCOAT >

Armourcoat have secured an important vendor contract for Sleep Inn hotels with their modular panel brand ArmourFX. A part of Choice Hotels International (CHI), Sleep Inn brand hotels total over 400 properties (existing or under development) in the USA, with nearly 31,000 rooms.

Following the successful design collaboration in 2013 with another CHI brand (with 1,700 welcome wall panels for Comfort Inn and Comfort Suites to date), ArmourFX has been appointed to create a media panel for wall-mounted televisions in Sleep Inn guest bedrooms.

The ArmourFX range of panels has evolved from Armourcoat's renowned applied seamless wall finishes. Armourcoat's specialist designers and artisan plasterers can create integrated custom wall panel systems or design statement single artwork pieces. The prefinished panels offer a rapid installation with ease of handling, and are ideal for projects under tight deadlines for completion.

EGGER >

With the trend for painted timber remaining as popular as ever, EGGER is encouraging more designers to try its revolutionary range of boards that are virtually indistinguishable from the real thing and available at a significantly lower price point.

EGGER's ST27 MFC decor range comprises of ten carefully selected designs in neutral, solid colours, as well as a painting-grade option effectively a board that can be painted in any choice of colour.

Painted wood is a style that is still very much in demand for interior and commercial design applications where muted paint tones with a heritage feel can be used to create an elegant, high-value look. But cost and durability are often key factors.

EGGER ST27 has an underlying oak-grain design and comes with matching 0.8mm edging for each décor and a 2mm painting-grade option.
